

Educators of Nevada County!

What should place-based environmental science look like in Nevada County?

Join us for a collaborative workshop offered by Sierra Streams Institute in partnership with Nevada County Superintendent of Schools

Who: Educators and school administrators involved in 3rd through 8th grade science. There is only room for 35 participants so RSVP today by emailing sol@sierrastreams.org!

Where: At the Nevada County Superintendent of Schools office conference room. Refreshments will be provided.

When: March 30th from 3:45 to 5:45pm

Workshop description: We are at a pivotal time right now for science in our schools with the recent California adoption of the Next Generation Science Standards and the new Common Core emphasis on academic language. This workshop will explore how place-based and hands-on environmental science education fits with the newly adopted standards. Join us to help create a vision for capitalizing on environmental science opportunities! Free Nature of this Place Curriculum Guide for those who attend!

RSVP to Sol Henson at sol@sierrastreams.org