

Annie Jackson

Continuous Improvement Specialist for Social Emotional Learning and Special Education

Prior to joining the NCSoS team, Annie Jackson spent ten years teaching special education in both Placer and Nevada County, most recently for Nevada City School District at Deer Creek Elementary. She began her teaching career at a residential group home with severely emotionally disturbed high school students and has since worked in a variety of classrooms ranging from elementary special day class to elementary and middle school resource programs. In her current role as a Continuous Improvement Specialist, Annie supports implementation of the CalHOPE grant, working with teams to strengthen Tier 1 Social and Emotional Learning (SEL) strategies at sites throughout Nevada County. Annie also has a Master of Science in Special Education and a passion for helping students overcome barriers in order to find success in education.
