

Dr. Christine McCormick
Associate Superintendent of Educational Services
Nevada County Superintendent of Schools

Dr. Christine McCormick was raised on a ranch outside of Wheatland, CA. She earned a bachelor's in business Administration from Humboldt State University and worked as an auditor for the first part of her career. She made the switch to education when her children were little, earning her teaching credential from Chapman University and her Masters in educational administration from National University. She holds a Doctorate in Organizational Leadership where she focused her research on the needs of small school districts. Prior to joining the Nevada Superintendent of Schools team she was the Superintendent/Principal of the Princeton Joint Unified School District as well as the Assistant Superintendent of Educational Services for Gateway Community Charters, the Director of Student Services for the Sutter County Superintendent of Schools as well as a Special Education Principal, Adult Education Principal, Middle School Principal and was the STEM coordinator for the Butte County Office of Education.

In her spare time Chris enjoys traveling, gardening, and reading. She has two grown children, one stationed at the Naval Base in Washington State and the other works at Disneyland and lives in Southern California. She is excited to be back working with districts as a county office of education administrator supporting the students, staff, schools and districts of Nevada County.
